

Atmospheric Shear Formation: Three Frame Study

A three-frame sequence documenting an elongated winter cloud formation exhibiting parallel shear patterns against open sky. Captured in both standard and enlarged framing using a mobile device. The structure presents finger-like projections created by wind-layer separation within a denser cloud mass. Documented as part of ongoing observational studies in atmospheric texture and perceptual response.